

2010 Gear of the Year

The Year in Gear

Which stuff really got our gear testers excited? Of all the good, better, best equipment out there, here's what we think stands out.

“[The KneeBinding] skis great, with all the edge-hold, lateral responsiveness and overall solidity you expect from a good binding.”

“That being the case, skiers who worry about their knees, or those of their loved ones – especially wives and daughters, who are more prone to injury – may want to give it a chance.”

“It has lateral release capability at the heel, what skiers need in the rearward, twisting falls that tear ACLs. Only the KneeBinding offers it, and if there's a chance that it can save you the pain and misery of a rupture, that seems well worth the price.”
